9. The correspondence between the content of the course and the expectations of the academic community, professional associations and representative employers in the field

- Students will acquire knowledge and competences in the area of public speaking, which constitutes a major asset from a professional standpoint, since this skill is usually regarded as problematic upon employment and later, in career progress. Furthering the information acquired in other courses, from communication to international affairs and diplomacy, the public speaking course takes a practical, creative approach, matching the most significant steps in the preparation, delivery and evaluation of a speech in official circumstances. The simulations cover a broad spectrum of the labour market, from the corporate environment to politics, public administration and diplomacy, whilst also focusing on the precepts of academic communication.
