

Studying abroad was a unique experience that made me see things from another angle. I was a student at National University of Public Service in Budapest, Hungary, a beautiful city with a lot of international students, interesting events and activities.

As an Erasmus student I had the opportunity to study in English, to meet professors from all around the world such as Kenya, Ethiopia, Pakistan or U.S.A. , to attend events where I have met ambassadors and ministers and to learn directly from the sources. I collected information in different fields from very good professors and specialists who made me like even more what I study and be more curious about what is happening around me and to develop myself in each way possible. But of course, Erasmus is not just about studying, meeting new people, interacting with different cultures and being independent is an essential part as well. This experience taught me to accept cultures that are different than mine and made me realize that even though we have different perspectives on particular things we all are people who want to enjoy life. Erasmus+ made me more open-minded, more curious and happier. I made true friends from all around the world, traveled in different countries and enjoyed everything that Budapest had to offer. To be on my own in another country helped me to be braver and to handle different situations.

In conclusion, I can say that Erasmus+ experience was one of the best in my life and every student should have it during their college years. I can only recommend NUPS in Budapest where they made me feel welcomed, taught and respected.
